

Welcome to CSSKS's Own Little Fireside Chat.

We have a sitting SKSD board member trolling for 'dirt' by using his new webpage: <https://skschools.info/> (that supposedly doesn't represent the opinions of any other board members) that he shamelessly promoted during a recent official SKSD public board meeting held on May 19th.

- If anyone has evidence that CSSKS is anything more than one or two guys with a website, submit that to isCSSKSreal@jb70.net. Do they have officers, members, meetings, etc.?

(A new post on John's educational website inviting fellow sleuths)

JR heralds the creation of his new website to air his grievances:

JR practices his "finely tuned" parliamentary skills. He is a 'master' at manipulating Roberts Rules of Order and here he brings his own motion to dismiss all charges against himself, Charges rightfully brought by co-school board director Jeff Daily which may be appearing in a different venue in the near future.

With a straight face during that meeting, JR made claims that he created this website to educate our community about the forthcoming election for hopeful schools board members. He claims he created this website 'as a helpful guide' for the 10 new school board candidates now running for election. Looking at his site, we were hard pressed to find anything having educational value posted on JR's website. Epic fail to enlightening future board members, but effective in putting stink in the air and further tainting the reputation of the school board and the board of directors. At least it not scare the board candidates away, no one has yet abandoned their campaign efforts.

Is this really the type of 'non-partisan' bickering and backbiting we should accept from a school board director sitting on the board of directors? WE can certainly do better.

Lets all hope that we find some fresh new faces with matching attitudes elected to the school board in November. New blood can turn things around. Who knows, soon it may be JR facing a 'two-barrel' censure hunt.

Please stay tuned... you will continue to be given the honest and unvarnished truth as the situation develops.
